MORE NORDIC NONSENSE

By RABBI FERDINAND ISSERMAN

Since the war, we on this continent have been periodically treated to outbursts of racial vanity parading behind scientific verbiage. A new chosen people has appeared on the scene of history: the Nordics. They, it is shouted, are the elite of mankind and they alone deserve considerations in immigration policies. Even though all men are God's children, the non-Nordics must be his step-children. They are the despised Cinderellas, fit for the menial tasks of mankind, and only to be tolerated among and sniffed at by their Nordic superiors.

So it is that we in Canada have recently heard from men in high places, as well as in low, that Central and Southern Europeans are undesirable immigrants. Yet if we analyze present day civilization we find that two peoples contributed most to it: the Jews and the Greeks: all non-Nordics. In the very churches where non-Nordics are denounced, a member of a despised Semitic race is worshipped. Neither Plato nor Aristotle, Michael Angelo nor Titian, Jesus nor Isaiah, could be admitted to Canada today if the views of our hysterical chauvinists were to prevail. For art, the world turns to Rome, for drama and music to Vienna: yet the residents of these cities are undesirable settlers. The Nordic frenzy is nonsense. The non-Nordics have a historical record which equals the best. Those who want to restrict the immigration of non-Nordics are either historically blind, racially ignorant or else cheats. Their motives

WHAT THE HENDERSON WILL SUGGESTS TO JEWS

The unusual action of a Christian bequeathing a share of his estate to the rabbi of a synagogue for religious purposes has occasioned much comment. To Jews this will should suggest that they remember the synagogue in their wills. While most Jews who leave estates of any size have made bequests to charities few have made bequests to synagogues. Our age will be known in Jewish history as the Social Service age, when social work of vision and greatness was undertaken by Jewish communities, and when funds were generously given to alleviate pain and suffering. But we seem to have forgotten the source of the passion for social service. We do not realize that the Jew's splendid response to charitable appeals is the fruit of generations of training in the spiritual values of life in the historic synagogue. It is religion and God who generate the passion to serve. We should never forget the reservoirs which feed the charitable instincts. By providing for the synagogue and its values, we provide for the continuance of life's finest ideals. When making you wills do not forget the charities but let us emulate the late Mr. Henderson and remember the synagogue.

JEWISH CULTURE

The Jewish community of Toronto will be [illegible] by the visit of S. Niger, noted Jewish critic and [illegible] who is coming here to deliver a series of lectures on literary topics.

Most of us are probably under the impression that Jewish life is no longer capable of producing any characteristic cultural expressions. The life that we see around us is disjointed and sterile. The forms are religious institutions. These [illegible] in the [illegible] generations but they are not organic [illegible] Jewish life. We support charitable organizations and relief undertakings. These achieve a coherent stroke in our existence. They [illegible] somehow imply a stirring consciousness of Jews as persons and [illegible] in the spiritual [illegible] expression of [illegible]. Zionism was once a [illegible] movement [illegible] political [illegible] to [illegible] now degenerated into a species of [illegible] [illegible] by a [illegible] sentimentality. The [illegible] communal and social [illegible] are [illegible] a series of [illegible] [illegible] to [illegible] in the darkness [illegible]. There is [illegible] [illegible] and [illegible] of [illegible]. [illegible] that [illegible] was responsible.

A little reflection will reveal however that [illegible] a short while ago we had a very large section of our people living under conditions which made for [illegible] activity. The Jews of east Europe had an [illegible] of their own. They were subject to [illegible] [illegible] and persecutions. But they developed a [illegible] Jewish existence. The problems of life were [illegible] [illegible] through a [illegible] Jewish [illegible]. Their modes of thinking and types of [illegible] had a [illegible] Jewish [illegible]. They [illegible] the [illegible] of their own and lived [illegible] their own personalities. They evolved an [illegible] of Jewish ideals and [illegible] which [illegible] a [illegible] [illegible].

Modern Judaism [illegible] [illegible] of [illegible] of the [illegible] powers which [illegible] and [illegible] themselves [illegible] Jewish life. And after the Jewish [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] there still remained a Jewish [illegible] which [illegible] [illegible] and [illegible] here. The [illegible] Jews of modern Europe [illegible] with the most advanced [illegible] of [illegible] still [illegible] a strange Jewish [illegible] in their [illegible] and when they [illegible] to [illegible] the reading of the [illegible] Jewish [illegible] there is [illegible] a [illegible] of supreme [illegible] significance. And even in America there is still a Yiddish [illegible] a Yiddish [illegible] to approach to the [illegible] of an interesting [illegible]. Its approach is being registered in a massive literature which is [illegible] growing. The Jews of the east [illegible] [illegible] in America were a highly intelligent people. Their reactions to the American scene were conditioned by a strange background of [illegible]. These reactions were imbued with a [illegible] literary [illegible].

Well, we are not in touch with these things. The literature of our people in Europe, the literature of our people in America, even [illegible] years ago [illegible] [illegible]—these are the manifestations of an [illegible] Jewish [illegible]. It is not [illegible] that the [illegible] of these

WILL INTRODUCE CLAUSE INTO MONTREAL BILL

Married women of Montreal, paying taxes to the civic treasury, will get another opportunity to cast their municipal votes for mayor, aldermen and for loan by-laws, despite the refusal of the aldermen to include a clause to that effect in the Montreal bill, which will be brought forward this session. Joseph Cohen, Liberal for St. Lawrence, Montreal, has decided to insert a clause in the bill when it comes before the private bills committee of the Assembly. The Assembly has twice passed such a clause, only to see it defeated by the Legislative Council. In both cases the clause was inserted in the bill by the aldermen, but on this occasion the aldermen refused to take the risk of the Legislature defeating the clause. This has given rise to considerable merriment, among the legislators, who have been given in this way a striking example of the manner in which they are held up as bogies to the electors of Montreal so that the aldermen may "pass the buck"; and there are some legislators here who would like to see the women get the civic vote merely to show the electors of Montreal that they are not the bogies pictured, in which case the joke would be on the aldermen, who twice piously approved the measure and at the last elections bewailed the backwardness of the Legislature.

INJUNCTION ISSUED AGAINST JEWISH RESIDENTS

Under an order of injunction issued yesterday by the Superior Court Jewish residents of the Town of St. Laurent are prohibited from using a plot of land in that municipality as a cemetery. The prohibitory rule is to exist upon the contention of the Town of St. Laurent that use of the land as a cemetery is forbidden by a zone by-law.

The town contended that in August, 1924, a general by-law was adopted prohibiting the establishment of cemeteries within the town limits. During the same month a company was incorporated under the name of the St. Lawrence Jewish Cemetery and a deed of sale was acquired privately for the purpose of establishing a burial ground. The municipality only discovered this fact in 1930, when a [illegible] against the company. The company contended that the land could not be zoned because it was to be used as a burial ground.

After the case sought an injunction from the Superior Court and yesterday Justice Lazarus maintained the writ and made the order permanent.

COMMENTARIES

By Rabbi Harry J. Stern, of Montreal
Associate Contributing Editor

ED. BARKOFF, PRESIDENT

My congratulations to "Eddie" upon assuming charge of the local Bnai Brith lodge. Ed. merits to be president. Few men have given of themselves to the lodge as did the new president during the past year. I trust Barkoff's administration will do its utmost to cement all factions and fractions of the Jewish community. That, to my mind, is the greatest function of a Bnai Brith organization. It is therefore very important that the president of the lodge ever be free from bias towards any interpretation of Jewish life. To a Bnai Brith president, whatever carries the name Jewish ought to be precious in his sight. Above all else, I trust that "petty politics" will be removed from the lodge; that at a lodge meeting radical Jew, Reform Jew, Orthodox Jew will meet as brethren. A tremendous job, "Eddie." Try it!

"MOSES"

This is the age of biography. Everywhere writers are digging up the "great" of the past and write about these with enthusiasm. Fleg's "Moses" is a splendid work on "the law giver," as pictured by the rabbis. Every Jew ought to read it. Sometimes I do regret that so many Jews hasten to purchase all kinds of books on "Jesus" and neglect the great studies on the life of Moses. The very next time you are to add a splendid volume to your library obtain "Moses" by Fleg.

QUESTIONS

So many reach my desk and oft I must decline to answer. Jews are sensitive, perhaps over sensitive. The centuries of ghetto life made its peculiar, emotional people. However, I write in the cause of Truth and Truth is above personality. It often hurts, but such are the ways of honesty. And so to the person who asks, "What about Jewish Masonic Lodges?" my answer is, I see no particular valid reason for such. Jews the world over constitute a great fraternity based on Judaism. Masonry, as I see it, is to bring about fraternization among all nationalities and creeds. Hence "segregation" into Jewish lodges endangers the real purpose of masonry. Among Jews and for Jews only, Judaism ought to be sufficient to promote fellowship and fraternity.

TREES AND ERETZ YISROEL

I know of no country that is so much in need of gardens, forests and trees as Palestine. And Jews at the approach of "The New Year of Trees" ought to plant trees in Palestine. This year Hamisha Assar B'Shevat occurs on January 26-27. Jews ought to contribute to the National Fund which converts the waste places of the Holy Land into pleasant countryside. The joy of planting trees in Palestine may be shared by all Jews who love Eretz Yisroel. Do your planting, Montreal Jewry.

Quebec province enjoyed the second largest construction year in its history during 1928, exceeding all others except 1926.

An analysis of the contracts awarded figures for this province showing how the large dollar volume was made up has just been released by MacLean Building Reports, Ltd.

Thirty per cent. of the estimated value of new contracts in the Dominion were awarded in Quebec last year. During the first half of any year there are always a number of contracts in progress which were actually awarded in the previous year. To read any comparative statement dealing with changes in money value of certain types constructed during 1927 and 1928, such article based on percentage of increase or decrease would be very misleading, so that actual figures, with percentage of change are given below (000 omitted):

By now it is safe to say that the annual returns from English Jewish writers on the Christmas tree problem among Jews are all in. Among those who have gone into the tree, toy and stocking menace are Rabbi Harry J. Stern, of Montreal, a most esteemed colleague, with whom this column is forced to take gentle issue as with others who think as he does. He sees danger when the Jewish child follows such heathenish practices as decking a tree or wanting to wake up and find toys in his stocking. And he hastens to add that Reform Judaism is not to blame for the Yuletide spirit among the Jews.

This column this week fain would come to the support of those parents who see no harm in giving their children some innocent fun at Christmas time and it maintains that such fun is innocent as far as the welfare of Judaism is concerned. Many observers have been seeing the decline of Judaism in the very grandparents of the tots who hung up their stockings this year. Was it because these grandparents hung up their stockings as children that they are not the pious, observing Jews they meant to be? Most of them never saw Christmas trees in their home so it must have been other dangers besetting Judaism which beset them. Some adult may tell you that he is indifferent to Judaism because his parents were too religious and too strict with him as a child when it came to religious observances but the case has yet to go on record of the man who was alienated from Judaism because his parents filled his stocking or bought him a Christmas tree.

There are many Jews in Canada of orthodox tendencies who bought Christmas trees and decorated them so that their youngsters should not miss the fun their non-Jewish neighbours were having. It is most conservative to say that every time this marked a sad rather than a holy day. For if Gentiles have come to put a essentially religious significance on the Christmas tree, why might it not be better to call this celebration anything but a holiday? If the festivities may be essentially intended to mark the birth of Jesus. Well, let us think that's all.

There is no reason here between the Menorah and the Christmas tree. Hanukkah is also celebrated. This year it came early enough to give the youngsters time to be ready for another good time by Christmas. The Feast of Lights, that rather unoriginal innovation of some Jewish fathers, is a sentimental and proved to be all right in its place. The children heard about Judas Maccabaeus and loved the heroics attached to it as do the various picturesque features of the different festivals. But they belong to a minority group and their parents have to hurt and disappoint them for the sake of principle in the majority pressure. With everybody else in the world having a good time chiefly because it is present-giving time, why should the Jewish child be asked to accept the particular burden of refraining from sharing in the general high spirits? Is it worth it? Besides, the "old-fashioned kind" of the pseudo or semi-orthodox Jew who celebrates at home and eats treif everywhere else is more likely to show the tolerance to accept Chanukah as a holy day and Christmas as a mere holiday.

It seems wrong of the rabbis to harp on the [illegible] and abstinence of Jews edging in for some [illegible] as Jewish children come to the age where they can get a [illegible] out of the universal moment the number of parents who succumb to the Christmas peril among Jews increases. We all must have an uncomfortable feeling doing it, unable to [illegible] and look over their shoulders superciliously. But the number does increase and to say that the one who [illegible] important youngster gives added strength to the process of assimilation is to accept fanaticism. It strives to create out of real [illegible] something harmless which started as a [illegible] and has just whatever significance people want to place upon it. It is superstitious to say that Jews cannot possibly attach religious significance to Christmas. And the time is coming [illegible] of any present opposition when the Jews who present [illegible] a Jewish [illegible] as free and strong those shoulders and try [illegible] and any [illegible] Christmas.

phenomena. We see only the snatches of activity around us, and in discounting their importance we write off vast treasures, and tremendous potentialities.

S. Niger is the profoundest student we have to-day of modern Yiddish literary creations. Through literature he is in contact with the deeper forces that play in Jewish life.

Would it not be interesting to hear what he thinks and has to say about the creative elements in the life of the Jewish people - the people with which our Jewish community is affiliated?

RENEWED DISTURBANCES REPORTED IN PETACH TIKVAH

Petach Tikvah, the oldest Jewish colony in Palestine, has been the scene of labour disturbances about a year ago, and now renewed reports of disturbances come from that colony. It appears that the main reason for these riots is the fact that the colonists often employ non-Jewish and non-union labour, which arouses the anger of the labour union. The present charge is that the offices of the agricultural committee of the colony have been broken into and doors and windows were smashed and valuable documents were destroyed. An appeal was made to the Zionist executive to take a hand in the matter and to use its influence in establishing peace and order in the colony.

Professor Hyman J. Ettlinger, professor of mathematics of the University of Texas, was appointed director of the University athletics, assuming his new duties on December first. Dr. Ettlinger was a football player at Washington University as an undergraduate and at one time coached the University of Washington football team.

It Came to Pass That——

This CANADIAN JEWISH REVIEW feature must prove of absorbing interest to all its readers, especially the young folks. It is a history of the Jewish people through centuries recorded by days. Buy a loose-leaf note book, clip this account and paste it in. If you do this every week, in time you will possess a hand-book of value. The historian is Dr. Cecil Roth, of London, England, fellow of the Royal Historical Society, author and essayist.

JANUARY 18TH

Death of Mrs. Judith Levy "The Queen of Richmond Green," 1805. Granger, in his New Wonderful Museum, calls her the Richest Woman in the Duke of Yiddish, and a most Remarkable Character. The last phrase at least was fully justified. She was born in 1707, the daughter of Moses Hart, of Breslau, whose liberality was largely responsible for the building in Duke's Place in 1722 of the first Ashkenazic Synagogue in London, the forerunner of the present Great Synagogue. He was outdone in wealth by only one other member of the Ashkenazic community, his cousin, Benjamin Levy. The marriage of Judith Hart with her kinsman, Elias Levy, Benjamin's son, Postponed two great fortunes, which, according to rumour, had been able to benefit from the fluctuations of the South Sea stock. The death of the husband, on January 14th, 1750, at the early age of forty-eight, and of her father a few years later, put Judith Levy in possession of an income reckoned at £6,000 a year, an immense sum in those days. This she enjoyed (and enjoyed seems to be the right word for it) during over half a century of widowhood. She became a regular frequenter of balls and masquerades. She was a familiar figure at Bath and other watering places. She played at backgammon matches with the Countess of Yarmouth and other of the aristocracy. Her house at Number 4, Maids of Honour Row, Richmond, became the centre of a gay life, which earned her the title of "Queen of Richmond Green." She remained at the same time most generous, and is said to have distributed over £1,000 a year in charity. But her name is remembered above all for one especial act of munificence which is all the more laudable when it is remembered how she was sunk in a non-Jewish environment (her surviving daughter had been saved from contracting a marriage with a member of the nobility only by her death on her wedding morning). The Great Synagogue which her father had founded, stood in need of structural alterations and had run into debt in order to meet the expense. When the news came to her ears she was furious, and said that they should have applied to her in the first place. Her donation of £4,000 enabled the alteration and enlargement to be carried out in splendid style, as a memorial tablet in the synagogue still commemorates.

JANUARY 19TH

Arrest of Jews in France by Philip Augustus, 1180. His father, Louis VII, had been at least tolerant. Even before his death, however, it was found that large numbers of the Jews subject to him arrested and imprisoned in all the cities were at worship in their synagogues, and were thus taken prisoners. They were liberated only on the payment of a ransom of fifteen hundred marks of silver. This did not, however, protect them from the general expulsion of 1182. It must be remembered that all this applied only to the Royal domain, which was at that time so slender that the enmity of the King was not of much greater account than that of any major baron would have been. The first disaster came for the Jews of France when the Crown had succeeded in enforcing its sovereign power over the whole country.

JANUARY 20TH

Capture of the fortress of Tripoli, 1705. The Bey of Tunis was at war with his Pasha, the governor against whom he marched with a strong army. After a brief campaign he drove him back into the city and besieged the enemy. A ruthless blockade was now begun, and he was resolved to say that if he effected his entrance he would put all of the inhabitants to the sword. At the critical moment, however, plague broke out in the camp, and he was forced to raise the siege and retire to Tunis. In memory of this deliverance, the local rabbis instituted a special service, ordained to mark the anniversary. This is still observed in the community under the name of Purim Shel

JANUARY 21ST

Orders issued for the expulsion of the Jews from France, 1306. It was reported that Albert of Hapsburg, the Holy Roman Emperor, had laid a claim to the revenue derived from the Jews of that country, as heir to Vespasian, the conqueror of Judaea. Philip le Bel is represented as having had the genial idea of sending him his vassals across the frontier, naked and destitute, plundering them first. Ultimately, however, he determined to act more systematically. On January 21st, 1306, he issued secret instructions for the simultaneous arrest of all the Jews of his dominions on July 22nd, with a view to their spoliation and subsequent expulsion. It was this heartless edict which spelled the end of the ancient glories of French Jewry, the royal authority extending by now over almost the whole country.

JANUARY 22ND

Destruction of the "New Jerusalem" at Warsaw, 1775. From the sixteenth century, the Jews had been officially excluded from the Polish capital, though individuals were permitted to make temporary visits for business purposes. Large settlements were, however, formed on the outskirts of the city on ground owned by members of the nobility. The most noted of these colonies was that known as the "New Jerusalem," situated beyond what has remained known down to modern times as the Jerusalem Gate. The legality of this settlement was recognised by the City Council, but disputed by the Crown Marshal, who was responsible for the enforcement of these regulations. Accordingly, on January 22nd, 1775, he sent his guard to invade the New Jerusalem. The merchandise found there was seized, and all the Jewish houses demolished. This action brought the whole problem to a climax, and was followed after a short while by the repeal of the old restrictive ordinances and the formal permission of the Jews to settle in certain quarters of the city.

JANUARY 23RD

Auto da fe at Lima, 1639. This was the most memorable case of the sort that ever took place in Peru, and, perhaps, in the whole of America. Among the sixty-four persons who figured in it was Francisco Maldonado de Silva, one of the most remarkable of all the victims of the Inquisition. He had been brought up in complete ignorance of the Jewish religion, and practised as a surgeon in Concepcion de Chile. At the age of eighteen the reading of the Scrutinium Scripturarum of the apostate Paul de Santa Maria, intended to convert the Jews, first awakened in him doubts in the Christian faith, and his father thereupon instructed him in the Law of Moses. While his wife was absent from home, he circumcised himself, assuming the name of Eli Nazarino. At the age of thirty-five he endeavoured to bring his sister to his way of thinking. She, however, was a devout Catholic, and denounced him to the Inquisition. When arrested, he made no secret of his convictions. He refused to be sworn on a crucifix, and stated proudly that he was an adherent of the faith of his fathers. Even in prison he observed the Day of Atonement, fasting for four days instead of for one in penitence for his sin, and he undermined his constitution by perpetual abstinence. With marvellous ingenuity, he pieced together out of scraps of paper two books (each of more than one hundred leaves) in which he wrote, with ink made from charcoal and pens cut out of egg shells with a knife fashioned from a nail, two treatises vindicating his conduct. Asking for maize husks in place of his ration of bread, he fashioned out of them a rope. With this he made his way out of a window, but, instead of making good his escape, he visited two neighbouring cells, urging the prisoners to remain steadfast to the law of their fathers. At last, after an imprisonment of nearly thirteen years, he was sentenced to be "relaxed" with ten others, in the Auto of January 23rd, 1639—the greatest as yet known in the New World. As the sentences were being read, a sudden whirlwind tore away the awning from over head. "This is the Lord's doing," he exclaimed, "that I may now look on the God of Israel face to face." His two paper books were hung around his neck to assist the flames. The candle which he lit in heaven was assuredly no less brilliant than those of Ridley and Latimer.

Massacre at Aix-en-Provence, 1436. A Jew of the city, Astruc de Leon, had been fined 100 livres on an accusation of having spoken disrespectfully of the Virgin Mary. Nine persons were slain, and seventy-four accepted baptism to escape death. "That was a day of desolation," writes an ancient chronicler, "when the congregation

Durant De Luxe "60" Sedan Six Cylinder

NEW DURANT MODELS

The Durant "Forty" models include De Luxe Four-Door Sedan, De Luxe Coupe, Four-Door Sedan, Two-Door Sedan and Coupe. In the six cylinder series the Durant "60" appears as a Special Sedan, Special Two-Door Sedan and Special Coupe, and De Luxe models can be secured in all of these. The Durant "70" includes Special Sedan, Special Coupe and De Luxe models, while the Durant "70" has a Special Sedan and Special Coupe and De Luxe Models. All Durant cars are powered with Red Seal Continental Motors, which this year contain a number of refinements and improvements that add greatly to their power and speed. The fours have an enclosed fly-wheel and other advantages emanating from the laboratories of Continental Motors, Inc., the largest exclusive motor manufacturers in the world. More power and smoother performance are attained because of the improved, non-detonating type motor head, and all motors, of course are rubber-mounted. The transmission is built "unit-ships" for accessibility and a greater factor of safety results from the exceptionally heavy construction of the axles the same type and construction as used on much larger and more costly cars. Long, flexible springs, with Lynite shackles, shock absorbers, front and rear, chromium plate, rust-proof screws and high pressure lubrication are some of the features of utmost attention. There is a new [illegible] which is formed to blend with the leather beads, making a [illegible] streamline effect from front [illegible]. The new type steering wheel [illegible] and is quite a [illegible] improvement. The steering [illegible] and the [illegible] are the same as that [illegible] cars. Wire [illegible] and [illegible] add to the [illegible] of the Durant [illegible]. The upholstering is [illegible] quality being all wool and [illegible]. The [illegible] are [illegible]. Mirrors [illegible] and [illegible] are to be found.

THE DURANT "60"

The Durant "60" has a 109-inch wheelbase with tires 29 x 5.00. These cars are very handsome indeed and have a new type hood with raised panel louvres, and a new piano type hinge. The attractive colour schemes of the Durant "60" are quite original and the upholstering is a combination of mohair and worsted. The body makers have again provided deep cushion springs and ample body room, with wide doors that are an added advantage. Considerable emphasis is placed upon the fact that the Durant "60" motor has a 2 7/8-inch bore and 4 3/4-inch stroke. The stroke is therefore longer than usual, and gives the Red Seal Continental Motor more power and speed while making utmost smoothness an additional attribute. The Lynite Inva Strut piston are of the same quality as found in the most expensive automobiles. It is noted also that the axles are of molybdenum, nickel and chrome vanadium steels and here again is another big-car-quality feature. The Durant "60" has a new type hood, chromium plate throughout and shock absorbers front and rear.

THE DURANT "63"

The Durant "63" is another remarkable member of the Durant family and promises to be exceedingly popular. Again it is found that the very finest of power equipment has been provided through the improvements embodied in its Continental Red Seal Motor. In this model the motor has an extra long stroke to provide for exceedingly smooth performance of a kind that will be a revelation to those who drive it. Power and speed there are in greater measure than the average driver will ever have occasion to use. The employment of extra heavy axles of molybdenum, nickel and chrome vanadium steel ensures maximum driving safety. The new type hood is very becoming and in keeping with the refinements and numerous improvements intended for comfort, in the body of the car. Upholstered in genuine mohair and decored in the latest colour combinations the Durant "63" is a really striking automobile.

THE DURANT "70"

With four forward speeds, capacity for eighty miles per hour with ease, seventy horse-power motor and built in radiator shutters, the Durant "70" is certainly one of the finest automobiles in the whole realm of motordom. The four speed forward transmission is an exclusive Durant design producing a silent internal third speed and a double high fourth speed. This exclusive feature has three outstanding advantages, namely: performance, economy and convenience. It makes driving and riding a new and finer experience, greatly reduces the wear and tear on the engine because it eliminates gear and reduces vibration to the absolute minimum. Because of this feature the life of the car is increased, oil and fuel consumption is reduced by twenty per cent. and engine wear by forty per cent. The front compartment is insulated against cold, heat and noise while the new and impressively designed radiator has built-in shutters that are controlled according to the driver's wishes. Extra heavy, well-braced frame and extra heavy axles, long springs for easy and safe riding, over-sized wheel bearings, two stage muffler and twin beam headlamps may be cited as contributing to the excellence of the Durant "70." The very best of hardwood is used throughout the body while the door handles and all other hardware have a pine cone design that is quite exclusive. The new straight line instrument arrangement whereby they are grouped in the panel of Butler finish is in keeping with the luxurious comfort of the wide, roomy bodies with their form-fitting cushions. The colour schemes adopted for the Durant "70's" are very pleasing and will undoubtedly prove popular with both lady and gentlemen drivers.

STRUCK BY STREET CAR, MONDAY EVENING, JANUARY 14

An she attempted to cross Dundas Street West at St. Patrick Street late Monday afternoon, Mrs. Paul Cohen, seventy two, of 101 Walton Street, was struck down by a Dundas Street car. She received a fractured skull and had body injuries. Mrs. Cohen was blinded by the snow, and ran out directly in front of the street car before the motorman had a chance to bring the car to a stop. The latter stopped the car just in time to prevent the front trucks passing over her body. It is said that Mrs. Cohen stepped from the south curb so suddenly that there was little time to stop the car.

The second woman to be struck down by a street car, was Mrs. Annie Abramovitz, seventy two, of 12 Beatrice Street, who in attempting to cross Dundas at Beatrice, was struck by an east bound Dundas Street car, operated by George Magee, of 17 McMurray Street. Mrs. Abramovitz was crossing the road with her head down to protect herself from the blinding snow, when she was struck. She was rushed to the General Hospital in the police ambulance where she died early Wednesday morning.

Northern Ontario, now open for settlement at fifty cents per acre, contains millions of acres of the finest agricultural land in the world. Its resources in lumber, minerals, water, power, fish, game and scenery are immense. The land calls for men to cultivate it, and in return will give health, comfort and prosperity.

What settlers say of the soil, climate farming and forest life, is told in a most attractive booklet issued under the direction of the Honourable John S. Martin, Minister of Agriculture for Ontario. Full instructions in regards to acquiring a title to these rich agricultural lands are also given.

he gave $5,000,000 to establish Jewish farm colonies in Russia, his generosity to negro institutions, his patronage of universities, museums and hospitals, stamped him as an individual of universal sympathies. In a recent interview published in the "Saturday Evening Post," he makes some pertinent remarks with reference to perpetual endowments, which we want to discuss. He says in part: "I am emphatically opposed to never ending endowments. We know what the needs of to-day are and we may take a reasonable guess at what the needs of our children will be. From the standpoint of both social morality and business efficiently, I hold, therefore, that the fortune which men have made in this day and age should be employed by them in the support of such philanthropic, benevolent or humanitarian enterprises as will benefit their contemporaries them and their children, no more." I unqualifiedly disapprove of their efforts made by certain benevolent donors and foundations to perpetuate themselves by restricting their enterprises and expenditures to the interest on the invested capital, and not only leaving the principal untouched but even adding from time to time to it from unused income." Mr. Rosenwald, himself, has established a fund of $75,000,000 with the stipulation that it be spent entirely within twenty five years after his death. There is a desire on the part of many to established perpetual funds in the hope thus to snatch a bit of immortality for themselves. But trust funds do not last too long. Changes in money values and in economic conditions may tend to dissipate them. Besides that, as Mr. Rosenwald has pointed out, the needs of a community may change and the trust become useless. There is no doubt of the cogency of Mr. Rosenwald's arguments. Those who have surplus money will be wise in giving it outright at once when it can be of immediate value, and where it can be of the greatest service. Take care of the present. Others will take care of the future.

Mrs. Norman Beale was guest speaker. A vote of thanks was extended by Miss Miriam Wolfson and Mrs. Florence Kappe. A Dramatic Circle is to be formed under the leadership of Miss Edith Dvoretsky, and only Zionist and Hadassah playlets are to be presented. Trees will be given to the following members who were recently married: Rose Goodman, Sophie Turov and Molly Weisdorf.

A PROMISE FULFILLED

WHEN the New Ford was promised to the motoring public our reputation, established by twenty-three years of undisputed leadership, came to the test. Restrictions as to price, raw materials and labour did not exist. The new car should be a masterpiece—the contribution of its makers to the automotive history of the age. Practical idealism would fashion it into the fleet, sturdy, beautiful car of today.

It was promised. Curtains of rumour and uncertainty cloaked the months. It appeared. One year on the highways of the world proved its speed, power, endurance; one glance, its beauty. The promise is fulfilled.

You have seen Ford cars glide by, moving into traffic, manoeuvering, taking the lead. ¶Now drive one yourself and feel the superabundant power at your command. ¶Any Ford dealer will be glad to give you a demonstration.
